WASHINGTON, July 25 .- The Senate committee on Territories, in ordering reports on the bills for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico has amended them so as to provide for the final admission with representation in Congress at the same time as Utah. It is understood that the bills will not be called up this session in the Senate, but that early in the short session they will be passed.

CRUSHED AT A FIRE

THREE FIREMEN LOSE THEIR LIVES IN THE WASHINGTON BLAZE.

Total Loss of Knox Transfer Buildings and Adams Express Stables Foots Up $500,000.

WASHINGTON, July 25 .- The stables of the Knox Transfer Company, at B and Second streets, at 2 o'clock this morning were completely destroyed by fire. Many firemen were injured and 200 horses perished. The stables of the Adams Express Company adjoining were also burned, but the horses were saved. The flames spread rapidly and were soon beyond control. An entire block of buildings was destroyed and three firemen of Company 1 were caught by falling debris. When taken out they were lifeless. They are:

SAMUEL E. MARTIN, crushed by heavy MICHAEL FENTON, killed by falling bricks. DENNIS DONAHUE, burned almost beyond recognition.

An employe of Knox stable was burned and may die. Fully a dozen firemen and policemen were overcome by heat and had to be carried to

They found the entire rear of the second floor of the building in flames and had hardly time to escape with their lives. Before they had left the building the blaze had communicated to the threestory rear part of the Adams stables. A hundred men ran into the Adams stables and cut loose the 150 horses and turned them into the street. The horses of the Knox company could not be reached There were 205 of them and they were on the second floor of the building, which was a seething mass of flames. The death groans of the dumb brutes, penned in on all sides by a fiery furnace, were agonizing. It is believed by the police that several laboring men lost their lives in the ruins, but no other bodies have yet been recovered. The express company's large warehouse was destroyed, with all its contents. The total loss was placed at $500,000. On the first floor of the Knox building were heavy wagons, while on the third and fourth floors were big quantities of hay and merchandise of all kinds, which had been stored with the company. Another four-story building of the Knox company, facing on Second street, and connected with the stables, was used entirely for storage purposes and was packed from the basement to the roof with furniture and merchan-dise. Families had stored their entire household belongings here, merchants had left carloads of supplies and there was load after load of incoming and outgoing freight.

PACE GREAT 2:15

TWENTY-ONE STARTERS IN A FAST CLASS AND CLAYHONTAS WON.

Mary Best and Eloise the Other Winners at Cleveland-Brighton Beach Judges Stirring Up Things.

CLEVELAND, O., July 25 .- There was great sport at the Cleveland driving track this afternoon. The weather was fine and the track in good condition, and, as a result, the time was very fast. The 2:15 pace, with thirty entries, had twenty-one starters. There was no favorite in the pools, the field selling well against any horse that could be picked. There was a game struggle at the finish of the first heat between Pixley Boy and Bullmont, the former winning by a neck. Frank Agan was sent against Pixley in the second heat and Col. Thornton in the third, and then Clayhontas won the last three heats and the race. In the 2:21 class Roseleaf was a hot favorite, and when Mahogany took the first two heats from her and tired himself out, Mary Best walked away with the race, and there was consternation in the pool rooms. In the 2:29 class Eloise had an easy time of it after the first heat. Summaries:

CALLS FOR RED BLOOD

WILD SCENES IN THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES YESTERDAY.

Events in the China-Japan Question More Pacific-Gladstone's Eyesight Seriously Affected.

PARIS, July 25.-There was a wild scene to-day in the Chamber of Deputies during the debate on the anti-Anarchist measures. M. Jaures, Socialist, moved to assimilate as Anarchists Ministers, Senators and Deputies accepting bribes. This led to a revival of the Panama incidents. M. Jourdan attacked M. Rouvier, an ex-Minister of Finance. The latter declared that he had come scathless through the Panama scandal, and he hotly informed M. Jourdan that he would take up the gauntlet with him elsewhere. M. Rouvier afterwards sent his seconds to M. Jourdan. The Jaures amendment was eventually rejected by a vote of 264 to 222. Subsequently the Chamber decided that the violent passages in the speeches should be from the minutes. This action having been taken it is deemed that a duel between M. Rouvier and Jourdan is needless.

the Chamber yesterday, during discussion of the clause anti-Anarchist measure providing for a restriction being placed upon the reports published of the trials of Anarchists, one of the Deputies remarked that the press should not be considered a privileged trade. Thereupon the newspaper men present in the gallery raised such a disturbance that the President of the Chamber ordered the gallery to be cleared, and suspended the sitting while this was being done. Later the press representatives were invited to return, but they declined to do so, their object being to record a protest against the indignity to which the press had been subjected. The Chamber soon ad-

LONDON, July 25.-The Times correspondent at Paris says that after the newspaper men left the Chamber they drew lots to decide who should challenge M. Denoix, the Deputy whose remarks aroused the ire of the press gallery.

INSTRUCTION TO FIRE.

Chinese Troops Numbering 12,000 Have Landed in Corea.

SHANGHAI, July 25 .- It is reported that the twelve thousand Chinese troops which left Taku, on July 20, for Cerea, conveyed by eight gun boats, have landed in Corea. The gun boats escorting the transports had instructions to fire on the Japanese if the latter obstructed the landing of this army. The other troops which left Foo Chow for the Loo Choo islands are also said to have safely reached their destination. It is stated that if the report of the landing of the Chinese troops unopposed i correct the prospects of a peaceful settlement of the disputes between China and Japan are improved, as the Chinese fleet of transports and gun boats could scarcely have escaped the vigilance of the Japanese war vessels if the latter had been preparing to oppose the landing of the Chinese force. This is said to show that Japan is now more amenable to the counsels of the treaty powers. BERLIN, July 25.-The Cologne Gazette says that the treaty concluded in 1885 between China and Japan empowers both governments to demand that the King of Corea maintain a force of troops sufficient to guarantee public safety, and also to employ foreign officers to organize the Corean army. At the same time both parties to the treaty agreed not to send their own officers to organize the Corean army. Beyond the contention of Japan that the King of Corea has not attended to the maintenance of public order, the terms of the treaty do not afford any grounds for Japan's interference.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 25.-The Novoe Vremya says that Russia is unable to remain indifferent to the fate of Corea. and that she ought to help China, or at least contribute to localize the war.

A Missing American. PARIS, July 25 .- The puttee, at the request of the United States embassy, are making inquiries in regard to the whereabouts of a young man named Sheldon, of Chicago, who arrived in this city on July 13 with a friend named Benton. Sheldon has been missing since July 14, and it is believed that he has been mur-dered. The missing man came from the United States via Southampton.

Gladstone Losing His Sight. LONDON, July 25 .- The Lancet says that the pupil of Mr. Gladstone's eye, which was recently operated on, has become so obstructed that a needle operation is necessary. His other eye is affected with an immature cataract, but he can still, aided by the application of a solution of alro pine, see to write, and to read good print moderately well. His general health is good and his vigor remarkable.

Cholera in Belgium. LIEGE, July 25 .- Since Saturday eight new cases and four deaths from cholera have been reported. There has been one death from the disease at Herstal. HIGH ROLLER PRINCE.

Huntington's Son-in-Law Loses $10,000 at Roulette in New York.

NEW YORK, July 25 .- The World's Saratoga special says that Prince Hatzfeld, C. P. Huntington's son-in-law, has for some time played roulette at the Saratoga Club. He was given a high limit and frequently won or lost several thousand dollars at a sitting. The managers became alarmed and fixed a $10,000 limit on the Prince. Last night the Prince, putting from $100 to $1,000 on every roll of the ball, won $11,000. Presently luck turned and he lost all but $2,900. He left for a time, but returned and lost the $2,900 and $10,000. Then the proprietor enforced the limit, whereupon the Prince upset the roulette table in a rage and smashed things generally. At last he was quieted and left the place.

Business Troubles.

KANSAS CITY, July 25 .- Henry C. Ward, of Kansas City, was this afternoon ap-uointed receiver of all the property of John Martin & Co., in Missouri, Kansas and Colorado, worth $3,500,000. The debts of the firm aggregate $800,000. The petition for the appointment was filed by Julia Martin, of Galena, Kan., widow of John Martin. She makes charges of gross mismanagement against Thomas H. Martin, brother of the deceased.

CHICAGO, July 25 .- The E. A. Armstrong Company, manufacturers of regalia, were closed by the sheriff to-day on executions issued on judgments by confession amounting to $33,000.

Movements of Steamers. ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 25.-Arrived: Siberian, from Glasgow. LONDON, July 25.-Arrived: Richmond Hill, from New York. LIZARD, July 25.-Passed: Columbia, from New York. HAMBURG, July 25 .- Arrived: Baumwall, from Montreal.

A DECLINING KINGDOM

THE LAND IN WHOSE BEHALF GRESHAM HAS INTERVENED.

Everything Tells of a Race That Has Lived Its Allotted Time and Is Being Pushed Out of Existence.

Gensan (Corea) Letter in San Francisco Ex-

The very name of Corea is suggestive of mystery. This little kingdom, way out here at the uttermost part of the earth, is still unknown, though she stepped out from her hermit life as long ago as 1882, and entered into treaty relations with the civilized nations of the world. Corea has not yet recovered from her air of bewilderment at sight of the great outside world, and those who have visited her, either as newspaper correspondents or travelers, seem to have shared in this same bewildered condition of mind.

When one first comes in sight of this east coast, instead of beholding a country clothed with beautiful forests of maple, black walnut, cherry, oak, varnish trees, red mahogany and every other common and uncommon wood, as has been represented, there is presented a panorama of mountains, whose rugged outlines, excessively steep slopes and severe, wild aspect produce a grand but melancholy and inhospitable expression. "It seems a forsaken land, given over to solitude." For the most part it is utterly treeless, nude and barren, though here and there are growths of unthrifty, crooked, weather-beaten pines. From the lofty mountain summits, which tower to the clouds, to where the foothills meet the sea, scarce a human habitation is to be seen; but on searching more closely in unexpected valleys that stretch far into the hills, we find many villages and hamlets, surrounded by fertile fields of rice, millet and other productions that give a comfortable support to the inhabitants. The Corean towns are composed of un-attractive collections of houses, low and ugly. These dwellings are small strawthatched mud hovels of one or two rooms, devoid of furniture, where the people sit, eat and sleep on the floor. The streets are only narrow, filthy alleys. The mud floors of the Corean houses, heated by flues from beneath, are called kangs. They are heated in summer and winter to a degree that would be intolerable to one not used to it from infancy. Fuel gatherers scour the country to find means to feed these primitive furnaces. All the hillsides are shaven every autumn with short, strong iron sickles. They are stripped of every growing thing; every stock and branch is taken off; every little bush that has sprouted from the old, old roots that lie buried in the rich, black soil; every chrysanthemum and bluebell, every blade of coarse grass, they cut down and bind in bundles for fuel. This is all they have. The impression prevailed until recently, that northern Corea was rich in timber, but it is now known that, except in temple grounds, or places sacred to some deity, or to the memory of some great person, there exists very little timber of any value. Everything like a stick of timber is very precious and costly. Every plank for building, every timber of our houses, is brought by ship from Japan. There is not, there need not be, a sawmill in all the country, for there is no wood to saw. All bricks for building are brought on steamers from Japan or China; though clay is abundant, and coolies are waiting to make brick, there is no wood to burn them.

No Yankee enterprise will avail here to tide over these hard places. EVERYTHING IS OLD. If age fills one with veneration, then you will find enough here to impress you most profoundly, for everything your eyes fall upon looks so old. The rocks are crumbling so you can break them with your fingers. And when the rainy season comes, in summer, the mold of ages gathers on everything, even to your gloves and shoes, if you drop out of them for a few days. The very air you breathe at such times seems to be charged with malaria and old age. It is all made plain when you are told that this is one of the oldest countries in the world; that some of its walled cities date back to King David's time; that most of them are more than a thousand years

The Coreans are proudly conscious of their antiquity. They say they have nearly lived out their alloted time as a people. Their slow sensibilities, ancient cus-toms, grave language and inert manner of life all befit the aged. They speak of Europe and America as just beginning life; and in a stately way they show they have no intention of yielding any of their venerable ideas to such frivolous youth No influence can move them to change their slovenly fitting white cotton garments for anything of a darker color or better shape. They insist on squatting on their heels when they walk in your garden, while they use the short-handled, awkward Corean hoe of the past ages instead of the civilized implement of to-day. This squatting posture is a favorite one with them. We see long lines of squatting men by the roadside, in the hot sunshine, resting; they seem to be perfectly happy, in a half comatose condition, with watery eyes, after a surfeit of rice and pickle, dog chops and soup of garlic, strings of meat and dough and some indescribable white lumps, neither flesh nor fish, bread nor fat, that cause a gagging sensation when you feel them upon your tongue, and that slide down your throat as though they might be lizard or snake. This leaves a flerce burning behind it, and your eyes fill with tears; you plunge a brass spoon full of rice into your mouth to put out the So wedded is the Corean to his ways that any change, even in the smallest detail of life, seems to him perfectly absurd. With as much hope might you interfere with the rising and setting of the sun or try to change the stars in their courses. All his ancestors have sewed up their fearfully and wonderfully made trousers, queer stockings, long, flowing white outer garments in just the same painstaking way, and therefore the Corean of to-day refuses our offer to stitch the long seams on the sewing machine, rather choosing to "sit up of nights" and rip and sew according to the good old custom. They will tell you that some strange appearance and movement in the water is caused by a dragon. You need not take the trouble to deny the existence of the winged ser-pent, for they will adhere to every old

Our pretty little Corean bride, who has been educated in a mission school, could not endure the thought of foregoing the custom of brides, so she gladly bore the pain of having all the short hair pulled out which is devoted to bangs by American ladies. Also a professional in the art plucked out her eyebrows. It cost many a tear, to be sure, but it was sufficient comfort to know she was following the good ly among the Coreans, and in the most reckless, unskillful manner. Ye Babang has a painful knuckle joint, probably a sprain. Though he is a convert to Christianity, a fine Chinese scholar and teacher, he contends most learnedly for many of these customs and superstitions. He had this suffering joint punctured deeply in three places with long needles. Now, after three days, it is inflamed so we fear lockjaw. Needles are often pushed through into the bowels and stomach as far as the length of the hand without the least regard to the situation of the internal organs, to say nothing of the quivering nerves. Sometimes these needles are roasted in the fire and taken out red hot and dipped into the medicine, the heat and medicine giving added agony-the treatment thus becoming more hopeful to the minds of these benighted people.

The young man Mars was sick. All sorts of medicine men were called in. It was decided that some spirit was disturbing his head, so they burned the top with a hot iron, but he grew worse, and the most learned of the wise men decided that the only remedy would be a medicine made of a finger of his only brother. The devoted brother submitted to have his finger cut off In some way it was pulverized, so the sick man swallowed it-we never knew with what result.

Our teachers and translators in Corea are philosophers in their way. They discussed the case of Hansabang, who has been ill for a long time Our American doctor says he has consumption. These learned Coreans reported that there was doubtless some unbalanced condition between the male an female atmospheres within the chest and stomach of Han. All sorts of medicine made of the most repulsive things, were mixed up, with incantations, and given, but with no avail, for this morning the poor man lies silent in death in his mud hut, and the mourners go about the street, wailing hideously. The old sorcerers say it was all because he had passed the point where anything could rectify his internal atmospheres. There is much unexplored country in Corea, and it would delight the heart of the intrepld sportsman to visit this unfretrouage. Music and all appointments strictly first-class, Capacity, 1,000 guests. J. R. HAYES, Prop. quented region. Among the mountains he would find many wild animals. Tigers, leopards, bears, wolves, foxes, badgers, hogs and deer are not uncommon in the lower hills. Great numbers of sable, ermine and otters are trapped in the highlands. Multitudes of birds are met with on hill and plain. Game birds are seen in great numbers. The beautiful pheasants are extremely plentiful. The turkey bustard, water hen, pigeon, plover, quails and partridges are common. In spring and autumn the waters of every inlet and stream are crowded with such quantities of wild fowl as to astonish and delight the heart of the sportsman-swans, geese, duck and teal, The Coreans still practice the ancient art of falconry. They use with great skill trained hawks and dogs to beat up the game. Corea has been famed for her fine pearls, but of late the pearl fishery has been unsuccessful. The seas literally teem with fish, but the Corean shuns a life of toil, hardship and danger. He does not venture out upon the seas, and only gets such fish as he can catch in rudely-constructed traps, set along the shore, which only require attention an hour or so each day. Whales, sharks and seals abound on the east coast. Multitudes of salmon, cod, haddock, herrings, sardines and innumerable other tribes crowd the waters. Oysters of an excellent quality form a staple article

The Japanese artificers drew their first knowledge and inspiration from Corea; but one will search in vain among the Corean handiwork of to-day for the slightest traces of the renowned craftsmen of ancient Corea. He will only find rude pottery and brass utensils without the least ornaments. The present generation, no doubt, looks just like the ancient ones, for, clad in the same fashion, we see these tall, white figures going down by the sea or winding up the steep hills and mountains by the same beaten footpaths that ther, as now, are the highways to China and Russia.

There are no ruins of ancient cities, temples or palaces-no enduring marks of the generations who have lived, labored, loved and died here. Only the old graves that billow the hillsides tell the sad story, They are recorded most carefully, worshiped and guarded as the precious treas-ures of the kingdom of Corea.

STONED PULLMAN'S HOUSE.

Chicago Anarchist Vents His Spite on the Sleeping-Car Magnate.

CHICAGO, July 25.-Simon Reskins, a Russian, made a malicious assault on the residence of George M. Pullman to-day. He hurled many stones at the massive building, breaking out ten or a dozen large plate-glass windows. He was arrested charged with malicious mischief. Shortly after 7 o'clock the servants in the Pullman residence observed an ill-clad, rough-looking man pacing back and forth in front of the house which stands at the northeast corner of Prairie avenue and Eighteenth street. He cast sharp glances at the house, and before the servants had taken any measures to learn his business or the purpose of his presence he began hurling stones at the windows. He took stones from the pockets of his overcoat. He had thrown perhaps a dozen missiles, each striking and breaking a pane of glass, when the butler and another man employed in the household rushed out to the sidewalk and seized hold of the stranger. He made little resistance. They started to march him toward the Cottage Grove-avenue police station, but a faw steps distant were met by a policeman, who had heard the crash of the window glass and was hurrying to the scene.

In the pockets of the man's overcoat were found several more good-sized stones, and in the pockets of his coat were found preliminary naturalization papers. When questioned he delivered himself of curses against the United States government and George M. Pullman. He said Pullman had thrown him out of work, and that this was not the last Pullman would see of him. Later he admitted that he was a tailor by trade, and had not been working at anything for a year. No weapons or more dangerous things than stones were found on him. George M. Pullman and his entire family are in the East, no one but the servants occupying the house. Reskins is said to be a well-known European Anarchist. He was held to the Criminal Court. The police are investigating his record, and his capture is thought to be an important one.
